Looking for support? See page 2. You can ask for help whatever your scores.

There are no right or wrong answers. This is not a clinical assessment.

Where to find support

You do not have to manage everything alone.

If your answers are at the lower end, or anything about how you feel concerns you, consider talking to someone you trust or your GP. You can share this sheet to help explain what is difficult.

These numbers are personal reflections, not a diagnosis or a test of risk. There is no cut-off score, and higher answers do not mean you should delay asking for help.

Need help now? Whatever your scores:

Immediate danger: call 999 or go to A&E if your life or someone else's life is at risk, or you cannot keep yourself or someone else safe.

Urgent mental health help in England: call NHS 111 and select the mental health option, or ask your GP for an urgent appointment.

Someone to talk to

Samaritans: 116 123

Free listening support, day or night, 365 days a year. You can talk about whatever is troubling you.

Mind Support Line: 0300 102 1234

Monday to Friday, 9am to 6pm, except bank holidays. Emotional support and help finding appropriate support. This is not a crisis service. Call charges may apply.

Children and young people

CAMHS means Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services. Ask a GP, teacher or school nurse about local support. Services and ways to access them vary; there is no single national CAMHS number.

For urgent mental health help in England, children and young people can also use NHS 111. In immediate danger, use 999 or A&E.

For ongoing or worsening difficulties, speak to your GP or care team. Hadamley is an information service, not a monitored support or emergency service.
